IOWA REPUBLICANS.

An Enthusiastic Convention Held at Cedar Rapids.

PREPARATIONS FOR VICTORY.

Platform of Sound Republican Doctrine—Omaha Endorsed as the Place for the Next Republican Convention—Clubs to be Formed.

CEDAR RAPIDS, July 1.—One of the most enthusiastic Republican conventions ever assembled in the state of Iowa convened in this city at 11 o'clock today. It is felt by the political leaders that the campaign is to be a severe one and the effect on national affairs is fully appreciated by every politician of the Hawkeye state. The Republican party is the most highly united for the first time in many years and today's convention is distinguished by its harmony and good feeling. The nomination of Hiram Cleaver for governor was accorded in advance and upon the platform there was substantially a reiteration of the party principles of two years ago. By the arrangement of the Democratic party for continuance with the lawless element in the violation and nullification of the prohibitory law an attempt is made to place that party on the defensive in the coming campaign. The threatened breakover the tariff question never came and it is likely the local coinage question will be almost lost from sight in the other stirring issues that are to agitate Iowa politics for the next four years. The convention was held in the opera house, which was tastefully decorated for the occasion. Among the audience were many persons of state and national reputation. Senator Allison, Congressmen Henderson, Perkins, Flick, Dolliver and Hull, ex-Governor Gear, ex-Governor Larrabee and Solicitor-of-the-treasury Hepburn occupied seats on the platform, and Mrs. J. Ellen Foster, the distinguished representative of the non-partisan Woman's Christian Temperance Union, headed a delegation of enthusiastic lady Republicans who occupied a private box.

Chairman Mack, of the state central committee, called the convention to order promptly at 11 o'clock. Prayer was invoked by Rev. Julius Ward, of Cedar Rapids. Chairman Mack's speech was short and crisp. It consisted in announcing John Y. Stone, of Mills county, as temporary chairman.

In assuming the chair, Mr Stone made a rousing speech of nearly an hour's duration. He was frequently interrupted by applause, but the culminating point was reached when the name of Jas. G. Blaine was uttered. "There is but one reciprocity," said he, "and James G. Blaine is its prophet." At the first mention of Mr Blaine, the loyalty of Hawkeye Republicans to the man from Maine was more than demonstrated, and cheer after cheer arose from the vast audience and the ladies in the gallery rent wild with their polite handkerchiefs in their manifestation for reciprocity and admiration for the distinguished secretary of state. At the conclusion of the Stone speech the new state central committee and various committees of the convention were appointed.

The convention took a recess until 2 p. m. and a meeting of the committee on permanent organization was at once held, at which Governor and ex-Congressman John A. Kasson of Burlington, was selected as the permanent chairman of the convention. The committee on resolutions also met after the adjournment of the convention.

The platform as finally adopted for presentation to the convention, endorses the McKinley tariff in the warmest terms, heartily commends the reciprocity provisions and its interpretation and observation by President Harrison and Secretary of state Blaine. Liberal pensions to disabled soldiers and their widows are urged. The financial questions are briefly disposed of by an endorsement of the men at silver law, of which Congressman Cooper of Iowa has the credit of being the author.

Immediately after the reconvening of the convention Permanent-chairman Gear was introduced and made a brief speech, predicting party success on the tariff and local issues. The nomination of state officers was then declared in order, and the convention declared that no nominating speeches should be permitted. For governor Hon Hiram C. Cleaver of Oskaloosa, Sac county, was nominated on the first ballot amid great enthusiasm.

George Van Houten of Lennox, Taylor county, was nominated on the second ballot for lieutenant-governor over the present incumbent, Lieutenant-governor Poyner. Van Houten was a Farmers' Alliance man, the ticket was completed as follows: For supreme judge, S. M. Weaver, for superintendent public education, Henry Sabin; for railroad commissioner, Frank T. Campbell of Newton.

Several telegrams received by the chairman were read amid applause and appropriately referred. One was from Secretary Rusk, of National League Republican clubs, pledging the aid of that league in overturning Iowa for the coming campaign. Ex-Congressman Geo. D. Perkins, chairman of the committee on resolutions, reported to the convention the platform adopted by the committee on resolutions, as follows:

Tuesday night committees of workmen consulted with their employers and the Britton company finally signed the scale. Horace E. Fuller of the Union company and Mr. Lewis of the Lake Erie company refused to accept the scale, and the lockout followed.

Coal Miners Strike.

CLEVELAND, July 1. Seven hundred coal miners in Jefferson county, Ohio, along the line of the Wheeling and Lake Erie railroad struck today for the nine-hour days. There has been no disturbance.

The Strike Extending.

CHICAGO, July 1.—The strike of the stevedores was complicated to-day at the Western Transit company's docks, the men on monthly pay going out in sympathy with the men who are asking an advance by the hour. At the other docks the situation is unchanged.

Street Cars Collide.

PITTSBURG, July 1.—A collision of a Pittsburg traction cable car and a Duquesne electric car occurred at 10.30 o'clock this morning at the corner of Ellsworth and Highland avenues. Both cars were badly damaged and Motorman Beck and two passengers named Clements and Jacobs injured. Beck was crushed in the leg and it is thought badly injured. The others will recover. Gorman Hull, through whose carelessness it is alleged the accident occurred, is under arrest.

Transferred to Kansas.

KANSAS CITY, July 1.—An Atchison special says: The river cut through Donophan point last night. The cut is about the usual width of the river and the current now pours through it. The water in the old channel is perfectly still and until the flood subsides, a lake seven miles long, in the shape of a horseshoe, will be left. The change in the channel transfers about 200 acres of Missouri land to the Kansas side.

The Question of Power.

PARIS, July 1.—The Temps, in commenting on the speech of the Prince of Wales, says that England's undertaking to protect Italy from a French attack is not and will be such an attack is utterly improbable. The obvious design of England, the Temps further states, is to counteract the influence of Russia in the Mediterranean, without favoring any individual power.

the Republicans are rapidly preparing for it, and that the Democrats cannot be too circumspect or too swift in anticipating to meet them. The plan of campaign of the Republicans, he says, is a mere matter of clubs to be maintained and supported by collected means, drawn from the pockets of the beneficiaries of the monopoly policy. This system, he says, can only be met by an equally extensive system of voluntary Democratic clubs, that is association of the people in the several neighborhoods for the defense of their rights and interests against those who are banded to assail them.

PUEBLO NEWS NOTES.

All Nations to be Represented at the Mineral Palace.

PUEBLO, July 1.—The impression has gone abroad that the Colorado Mineral Palace company will charge an extraordinary fee for admission into the building July 4th. Regarding this matter Pres. W. W. Palmer says: "The Mineral Palace will be opened July 4th from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m., for the benefit of the general public. The price of admission will be fifty cents for adults and twenty-five cents for children. The impression that $5 will be charged got abroad in the state journals by the reason that it is the price of admission to the grand military ball which takes place at night."

A large number of the finest private collections in this county have been received at the palace within the past few days. The people of this section can rest assured that the display made July 4th will not only be a credit to the state but the largest and most comprehensive mineral collection ever seen in the known world.

SOME FINE SPECIMENS.

Messrs. J. W. Swisher and C. L. Westerman arrived in Pueblo from Breckenridge, Colo., four days and produced a decided sensation among the Grand hotel by displaying $50,000 worth of crystallized native gold specimens which will be displayed in the Colorado Mineral Palace. The specimens are marvels of beauty, some of the formations being more attractive than can be produced by any artist. No such collection was ever found in any other mining camp in the world. The crystal formations in pure gold, just as they came from mother earth, excel the most marvelous conceptions of the expert jeweler. The gentlemen representing the rich gold fields of Breckenridge were surrounded by an interested party of spectators and no other question was discussed. An English party was made up last night to visit Breckenridge. The display will be put in place in the Colorado Mineral Palace at once and will be on exhibition July 4.

A DIVORCE GRANTED.

Mr Jno. G. Morgan, late of Leadville, but now prominent in Pueblo business circles, has been granted a divorce from his wife who was formerly Miss Vick Ray of Denver.

Madame Pallo Confesses.

DENVER, July 1.—Detective Reno with his prisoner, Madame Pallo, arrived here this morning. Last January Madame Pallo was arrested for the theft of a $1,000 check from the office of G. A. Newkirk, state agent of the Mutual Benefit Life Insurance company. After her release on a $5,000 bond she disguised herself and went to Chicago, where she engaged in dress making. She was found by Detective Reno, and while on the way to Decatur, Illinois, it will be recalled, she jumped from a rapidly moving train, sustaining severe injuries.

After her capture she made a full confession to the detectives. Her confession implicates Charles M. Newkirk, a brother of the insurance agent. She throws the whole blame on him and says he forged his brother's name to the check and then induced her to benefit the check, afterwards drawing the money from the bank. She says that before leaving Newkirk she says that she was forced to enter into the crime, and it was to shield him from disgrace that she attempted suicide by jumping from the train. Now Newkirk is in jail and Pallo is here.

Pork Inspection Satisfactory.

WASHINGTON, July 1. Secretary Rusk when asked in regard to the results of the pork inspection at Chicago, said today that it had been very satisfactory. The proportion of animals found affected is less than was expected, and he believes less than exists in the hogs of any other country. Our pork, he continued, is the most wholesome of any produced in the world, because our hogs are raised under the best sanitary conditions. They are not confined to small pens and filthy quarters as in other countries, but they have the run of large fields and are fed upon clover and corn. Hogs here are not treated as scavengers and fed upon slops and garbage as they are in Europe; but on the contrary, they are treated as a means of marketing in a more concentrated form the bulky produce of our farms.

Our inspection has demonstrated without question that the pork of the United States is beyond suspicion, and the inspected product will be by far the best which finds its way to the European markets.

Rates—May Settle.

CHICAGO, July 1. Six hundred and fifty employes of the Union and Lake Erie rolling mill companies went out on a strike this morning. The trouble was all caused by the adoption of a new scale by the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers. The scale provides that the 8 hour work but 9 hours per day—formerly they were paid for 10 hours and it is claimed by the employes that a good workman could finish his day's work in nine hours.

Tuesday night committees of workmen consulted with their employers and the Britton company finally signed the scale. Horace E. Fuller of the Union company and Mr. Lewis of the Lake Erie company refused to accept the scale, and the lockout followed.

DEBT STATEMENT.

Secretary Foster Counts on a New Plan.

HIS REASONS EXPLAINED

A Combination With the Treasurer's Statement of Assets and Liabilities—The Government Receipts.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—The debt statement issued this afternoon shows that the decrease of the public debt during the month of June, less the cash in the treasury, amounted to $1,099,382. In addition to the treasury $745,849,737.61. The bond debt has decreased $2,218,000.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—The monthly public debt statement was issued today in an entirely new form. It combines with the secretary's statement of the public debt, and the United States treasurer's monthly statement of assets and liabilities, heretofore issued separately. Comparing with the last monthly statement and the statement issued July 1, 1890, shows an increase in the public debt during the past month of about $5,000,000, and a net reduction during the past fiscal year of $22,000,000. The surplus in the treasury today in the new form of statement put out today is placed at $53,887,908, or about $5,000,000 less than a month ago, with a change in the interest bearing debt of the government during the past month. The bonded debt today is $840,624,120, made up in round numbers of $560,000,000 of 4s and $80,500,000 of 4½ per cent bonds.

Secretary Foster this evening gave out the following statement explanatory of the change of form of the monthly debt statement and the daily statement of cash in the treasury, which will hereafter be issued: "Heretofore the manner and make-up of the monthly statement required the showing of an increase or decrease in the public debt. Under this form it has happened on several occasions that when large purchases of bonds were made the statement following would show an increase of the public debt when a reduction had really been effected. This was owing to the fact that the principal and premium paid for bonds reduced the cash on hand beyond the amount of bonds actually redeemed. The secretary has concluded after much thought on the subject to separate the statement of the debt from the statement of the cash in the treasury. Hereafter the statement of the cash on hand will show the net increase or decrease from month to month and the statement will be a portion of the form now adopted.

"In making up the new statement of the cash in the treasury the figures will plainly show the different kinds of money included in the total. Against this total will be stated the total liabilities. This part of the new form will take the place of the assets and liabilities statement heretofore issued by the treasurer.

"In form the debt statements the accrued interest and interest due and unpaid have appeared as current liabilities. These items have been omitted. The secretary holds that if accrued interest may be charged as a liability against cash, then with equal propriety accrued interest should be so charged, or in like manner the accrued liability for the construction of public buildings or for the improvement of rivers and harbors.

"The interest-bearing debt is made up of the amount of bonds issued, less the amount of bonds redeemed. It is assumed that less than twenty-five per cent of them will ever be presented for payment. They are now, as heretofore, charged on the debt statement, but not as a liability against cash."

The secretary also calls attention to four items of liability against the cash in the treasury, amounting to $51,000,000, namely, viz: First—The five per cent fund left for redemption of expired national bank charters, which can only be reduced by the withdrawal of national bank circulation. The secretary thinks this amount ought, by law, to be covered into the treasury as soon as practicable with the fund of the redemption of expired and retired national banks. The probability is that this sum will be increased during the coming year, instead of being reduced.

Second—The item regarding checks and drafts will hardly ever fall below $5,000,000.

Third—Disbursing officers' balances now amounting to about $34,000,000. This money is in the treasury and in the government depositories to the credit of disbursing officers, and seldom falls below the present amount.

Fourth—Any deficiency in the made up mainly of postal revenues and subject to the draft of the postmaster-general. This too, rarely falls below $5,000,000.

These four items, he says, if held by a bank could be safely loaned up to nine tenths of the total sum.

The secretary will not hereafter deduct from his cash balance the amount on deposit in national banks, nor the fractional silver coin on hand. He thinks there is no good reason why this should ever have been done.

GOVERNMENT RECEIPTS.

Government receipts from all sources during the past fiscal year aggregated $401,781,716, about one million and a half less than during the preceding years; customs receipts, or about ten millions less than during the preceding year; internal revenue receipts were $145,945,921, an increase over the preceding year of three million and a quarter, and receipts from miscellaneous sources were nearly thirty-six million, about five millions greater than in the preceding year.

On the other hand expenditures during the fiscal year just closed were $298,650,834, against $318,040,710 during the preceding year, seventeen millions and a half less than in the pension charge, $124,415,110 for the year, and miscellaneous expenditures during the year amounted to $110,170,939, an increase over the preceding year of nearly $10,000,000.

Indian expenditures were $8,525,168, or nearly $1,000,000 more than during the preceding year. Navy expenditures were $26,115,008, $3,000,000 more than during the preceding year and war department expenditures were $42,116,116, or $4,750,000 greater than the preceding year. $57,127,301 were paid out during the year for interest on the public debt and $10,401,230 in premiums of $4,414,000 bonds purchased and redeemed during the year.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—The president will leave Washington Friday morning for Cape May, N. J., and for the next five or six weeks will transact all public business requiring his attention at that place. Private secretary Halford will join him there next week, and establish an office at some convenient place near the president's cottage and will have telegraphic connection with the executive departments at Washington. Mrs. Harrison and Mrs. Parker, nieces of Mrs. Harrison, left Washington to-day for Cape May.

The president will be accompanied by Lieut. John P. Parker, U. S. N. The yacht will undergo extensive repairs during the summer and will not be laid up.

SILVER BULLION STATEMENT.

In view of the proposed change in the form of stating the public debt, the director of the mint before this morning to make a statement of the change in the debt since June 1st. It is understood, however, that there has been a slight increase in the silver bullion in the treasury since the last report, the increase being due to the purchase of silver bullion under the act of July 14, 1890. No particulars can be given at present, but it is understood that the increase results from the purchase of silver bullion under the act of July 14, 1890.

unusually heavy expenditures during the month. Under the last call on national banks $1,000,000 of government funds on deposit with them have been transferred to the subsidiary credit and have been added to the treasurer's cash balance.

Silver Purchase—Continue.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—The director of the mint to-day resumed the purchase of silver. The amount offered for sale was 1,000,000 ounces, of which 570,000 ounces were purchased as follows:

47,000 ounces	$1.0125
40,000	1.0200
50,000	1.0230
100,000	1.0250
350,000	1.0255

After a Sugar Bounty.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—The first license to a sugar producer under the bounty clause of the new tariff law was issued today to Edward H. Cunningham of Sugar Land in the third district of Texas. His application was made on June 8 and the license is good for a year.

BASE BALL.

Western Association.

DENVER-MINNEAPOLIS.

DENVER, July 1.—Denver won to-day by bunching their hits in the fifth inning. The features of the game were home runs by Tebeau and Burns and good work by Duke, he striking out seven men. Ward had three little conversations with Emslie at 3b a talk. The score:

Denver	2	0	0	0	4	0	0	0	1	—7
Minneapolis	1	0	0	2	0	1	0	2	0	—6

Earned runs—Denver 3, Minneapolis 1. Two base hits—Shugart. Three base hits—Werrick, McNabb. Home runs—Tebeau, Burns. Stolen bases—Denver 1, Minneapolis 4. First on balls—Off McNabb 3, off Duke 1. Hit by pitcher—Mellone. Struck out—By McNabb 5, by Duke 7. Passed balls—Buckley 1. Wild pitches—Duke 1. Time 2:15. Umpire—Emslie.

LINCOLN-MILWAUKEE.

LINCOLN, Neb., July 1.—To-day's game between Lincoln and Milwaukee was a pitcher's contest in which Vickery had just a little but the best of it. The local men's errors were exceedingly costly, contributing in a large degree to two of the runs scored. Score: Lincoln, 2; Milwaukee, 3.

KANSAS CITY-DULUTH.

KANSAS CITY, July 1.—Duluth barely escaped another shut-out today by bunching three hits in the sixth inning and securing an earned run. Kansas City batted Hart and Goodenough all over the lot and put up a pretty fielding game. The fielding of the visitors was very poor. Pickett's all-round work and the slugging of Foster, Stearns and Gunson were the features of the game. The score was: Kansas City, 15, Duluth, 1.

National League.

NEW YORK-NEW YORK.

PITTSBURG, July 1.—Harry Wright's ball players "did up" the New York Giants today, although they were outbatted by Mutrie's team. Welch was in the box for New York and but two safe hits were made off him, but costly errors by the men behind him allowed the Phillies to score four runs while the New Yorks were getting two. Score: Philadelphia, 4; New York 2.

BOSTON-BROOKLYN.

BOSTON, July 1. Boston turned the tables at Brooklyn park to-day and knocked out a victory in a game characterized by sleep fielding on the part of both teams and heavy batting by the Bean Eaters. Nichols was a complete puzzle, only two hits being made by the Brooklyns. Caruthers was hit hard throughout the game. Score: Boston 6, Brooklyn 0.

PITTSBURG-CINCINNATI.

CINCINNATI, July 1.—Pittsburg won the game today and by hard hitting succeeded in winning a game of ball. Mullane was in good form throughout, while Rhines was hit hard throughout the game. Score: Pittsburg 6; Cincinnati 4.

CHICAGO-CLEVELAND.

CHICAGO, July 1. Chicago made nine runs, all of them earned, in to-day's game and played an excellent game in the field, while Aaron's cobish young men went at Gruber in a wild manner, a way that made the Cleveland twirler sick. Hutchinson was in great form holding the Infanticides from the Forest city down to two singles. Score: Chicago, 9; Cleveland, 2.

American Association.

At Boston—Boston, 9, Washington, 3.
At Philadelphia—Athletics, 2; Baltimore, 4.
At St. Louis—St. Louis, 6; Louisville, 4.
At Columbus—Columbus, 4; Cincinnati 2.

New York Stock Market.

NEW YORK, July 1.—Exchange was weak this morning again on a generous offering of bills, and at noon bankers had posted eight and sixty days at lower rates. London prices came in at material advances and yesterday's movements for higher prices continued today in the stock market. Notwithstanding arbitrage dealers influenced by higher prices in London and covering by the shorts sent prices up materially in the first hour. There was a slackening in the pace before noon, and in the middle of the day indications pointed to more or less selling by the professional element to realize profits. The interest of speculators centered chiefly in the sugar list. The price for these certificates fell off slightly in the early dealings, rallied within half an hour, broke again and continued the see-saw movement during the remainder of the day. The rumor of the past week that an injunction would be obtained against the dividend was revived today, but the news was surrounded with a mystery unusually profound. The injunction was obtained yesterday in this state but there appeared to be no sugar refineries people in New York to-day upon whom it could be served. The story was promptly circulated that the directors were in Jersey City out of the court's jurisdiction, mailing the checks of the dividend before they could be stopped by the court process. No body could either affirm nor deny this story. The result of this was the stock movement in the certificates, their being apparently no certainty in anybody's mind as to the facts in the case. There was a fairly large trading in silver bullion certificates all day long. The price did not change materially but yesterday's rally of 1½ cents per ounce fired a bevel in price which it might have been difficult to maintain except for the fact that the government's purchase began to-day. The announcement of the engagement of $500,000 gold this morning had no effect and was apparently viewed as being of little consequence. The engagement was generally believed to be for the purpose of meeting a contract entered into before the decline in rates of exchange.

During the afternoon the market was active and the tendency of prices downward. In the first hour to-day London houses bought 10,000 shares of L. S. & N. Y. the information concerning the payment of dividend on common stock of sugar refineries was obtained from Judge Barrett yesterday. The closing prices were generally ½ to 3¼ per cent higher.

Total sales, 175,352 shares.

Summary of Heavy Fighting.

LONDON, (via Galveston) July 1.—There are no news of very fighting between Hazeo and Coquimbo, Chili, and said. No particulars have yet been received here.

BLAINE IS SICK.

A Sudden Summons to the Village Doctor.

MUST HAVE PERFECT REST

A Sudden Turn for the Worse—The Family Alarmed but Nothing Serious—The Great Secretary is a Shadow of His Former Self.

NEW YORK, July 1.—A Bar Harbor special to The Mail and Express says: About 8 o'clock last evening a messenger from the Blaine house called at the office of the village physician and together they hastened to Stanwood, Mr Blaine's residence. The piazza, which an hour before had been crowded with friends of the family was entirely vacated. Everything portended that the secretary of state had had a bad turn. It was learned that the attack was not very serious, and it appeared to be for the night.

This morning he was a great deal better and as the day progressed he seemed to recover. Any unexpected change in Mr Blaine's condition arouses the interest of the whole cottage population. He is the chief and all-conspicuous figure at Bar Harbor.

Just now he is but a shadow of his former self. His complexion is very sallow. Part of his trouble is prostration of the nerves. His voice has lost most of its volume and steadiness, and after a short talk with one of the family he becomes hoarse and choked and coughs quite frequently. It is very hard, so the family physician says, to make Secretary Blaine understand that he must have perfect rest.

A CONFIDENT OPINION.

BAR HARBOR, Me., July 1.—Mr Blaine took two outings to-day. In the morning he rode about town and this afternoon he took a long drive. At one time during the drive Mr Blaine alighted from the carriage and took a short walk.

The physician who is in attendance upon the secretary says Mr Blaine's health has certainly improved since coming here. He says the improvement is slow, but he believes Mr Blaine will be in a good state of health before the close of the summer.

There is no foundation for the alarming report circulated. His mental strength is unimpaired. He says his improvement is of course slow.

At the Stanwood, Mr. Blaine's cottage, it was said that Marquis Imperiali had not yet called on Secretary Blaine. Nothing of public interest has brought the marquis here. He comes simply on a vacation.

Gladstone's Health.

LONDON, July 1.—Mr. Herbert Gladstone says that influenza first attacked his father's throat and that on his recovery from that attack exposure during an ovation brought on a bronchial affection. He was happy to say that his father was now improving rapidly and that there was no cause for alarm. The queen and Prince of Wales have sent telegrams inquiring as to Mr. Gladstone's health.

United States Mining Patents.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—Increased application for printing and engraving the final volume of the eleventh census has become available to-day and the superintendent of census has received the final volume on mines and mining, which will be printed at once. The report shows that the total value of the mineral products of the United States at the eleventh census amounted to $595,332,000, the greatest ever reached in any year. It has taken the place of Great Britain. The total number of persons in mining establishments is given 215,164. The number of persons who find employment in mining industries is 512,114. The annual wages paid the average is $412,400,000. The capital employed in actual mining operations amounts to $1,713,000,000.

The final volume on mines and mining will be followed in a few weeks by that on transportation, wealth, debt, taxes, Indians, statistics of cities, Alaska and the compendium.

[illegible]

ROME, July 1.—The pope has written to Cardinal Gibbons declaring that he will not exceed the demands made by Herr Cahensly on behalf of the St. Raphael societies for the protection of Catholic emigrants in so far as the appointment of national bishops is concerned. The pope has also refused the petition of the United States Poles for the appointment of a Polish bishop.

[illegible]

BUCHAREST, July 1.—Upon Cardinal Gibbons was shown an Associated Press dispatch today from Rome stating that the pope had written him that he would never concede the demands made by Herr Cahensly on behalf of the St. Raphael societies for the protection of Catholic emigrants, in so far as the appointment of national bishops is concerned, and that the pope has also refused the petition of the Poles in the United States for the appointment of a Polish bishop. Cardinal Gibbons remarked he was glad to receive the information. His eminence added: "I was not prepared for a commendation of this kind from the Holy Father."

"I will be very glad to receive the letter from the pope, for it will remind foreigners that the clergy of the United States are fully capable of discharging their duties, and that while the bishops are zealous in the fulfilment of their spiritual function and they are loyal to the country and in harmony as they ought to be to its political institutions. We trust that the letter of the holy father will serve to restrain foreigners from any hasty or unwarrantable interference with our domestic affairs in the future. They seemed to be impressed with the idea that the Catholic community in the United States is a simple aggregation of foreigners, while in reality the great bulk of the Catholic community is made up of natives, some of whose ancestors especially in Maryland, have been settled in the country for several generations."

The Emperor's Visit.

LONDON, July 1.—The Duke of Connaught and Edinburgh and the Duke of Clarence will meet the Kaiser William at Sheerness. The Prince of Wales will meet the kaiser on his arrival at Windsor. As the rooms in the castle are not large enough to accommodate the suite, many will have to be accommodated at the hotels. The military authorities are distracted by the extraordinary regulations for troops for ceremonial purposes. The Prince of Wales has had a long interview with the queen for the purpose of settling a number of perplexing questions of etiquette and precedence. The society paper called Truth says the federation has been without precedence since the marriage of Queen Victoria and that the kaiser is a hundred times more exacting and unreasonable than the Russian emperor Nicholas, who made such trouble.

An Alleged Revolution.

BUENOS AYRES, July 1.—The revolution which broke out in Catamarca as announced on Thursday last when the provincial government was overthrown and a provisional government established, has been suppressed and the regular provincial government has been restored to power.

The United States has now the claim to the greatest mining country in the world. Its product exceeds that of any known country in any known year. And foremost in natural resources, though not yet in actual product, is the state of Colorado.

BOARD OF PUBLIC WORKS.

It will be remembered that the last legislature passed an act providing for the appointment of a board of public works in all cities with a population of ten thousand or more. As petitions will be circulated within a few days requesting the governor to appoint a board, we print in full the law in order that those who are requested to sign these petitions may act intelligently. This law is as follows:

SECTION 1. That as soon as practicable after the passage of this act, the governor of the state of Colorado, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, shall appoint, for and in behalf of any incorporated city within the state, having a population of 10,000 or upwards, three persons to act as a board of public works for said city, subject to the following conditions, to-wit:

First—The appointment of such board of public works shall be requested by a petition to be signed by one-third of the qualified electors, as shown by the poll list of the last city election, who are also property owners in the city for which the board of public works may be asked.

Second—No person not a resident and owner of realty within the said city for the period of at least two years next preceding his appointment, and no person not legally a citizen and a qualified voter of said city shall be eligible to appointment, or be a member of said board.

Third—The members of such board shall hold office for the term of two years, commencing therefore date from the first day of May and expire on the thirtieth day of April; provided, that the governor shall have power to make the appointment of any member of said board for causes, to be specifically stated before such revocation be made.

Sec. 2. The members of any such board shall serve without compensation; said board shall organize by choosing one of their number president. Said board shall also be furnished by the city with a convenient office, stationery and clerical assistants, civil engineer, surveyor and other assistants and help for the performance of his duties by the said board demanded reputable and skilled, and the city shall pay for the same, and to be approved by said board.

The said board shall on the last days of March, June, September and December of each year make to the city council detailed reports of its operations, together with full and complete statements of money received and expended by said board.

Sec. 3. The said board of public works shall have full, complete and exclusive authority to receive and expend for and in behalf of said city, and whenever a city has been created from two or more cities or towns, and any portion of the property of the former cities or towns out of which it was consolidated is in the hands of trustees to be administered for the benefit of the property and inhabitants within the limits of said former cities or towns respectively, then such board shall have full, complete and exclusive authority to expend for and in behalf of such trustees, such sums of money as from time to time may be realized from the sale of the bonds of the city, if voted and issued in accordance with law, together with any amount required by any special levy of public improvements or appropriations by the city council, from the general revenue therefor, in part or in whole, in purchasing or acquiring for public use, by condemning boulevards, avenues and alleys in such parks or in forestalling and maintaining the same, improving or maintaining the banks of public streams, in constructing and maintaining public sewers in the city or adjacent within or without the city limits, cesspools, ditches and water works, for the use of said city, or in purchasing lands for such purposes and in paying for such other improvements as the said board shall deem wise and appropriate to be made for the use of said city. For any of the purposes aforesaid and the said board of public works shall have full and absolute authority to negotiate the sale of said bonds when issued for the purposes above named; provided that all contracts shall be let and expenditures made by said board in the manner as now or hereafter may be provided by law for the letting of contracts or making of expenditures by the city council of said incorporated city, and to receive and expend the proceeds of the same. As soon as said board shall be organized the city council shall transfer to said board matters as shall thereupon belong to the jurisdiction of said board.

The powers and authority of the city council conferring such matters as by the terms of this act vested in said board shall then and there cease.

SEC. 4. In cities of the first class the said board of public works in addition to the powers above conferred shall have full complete and exclusive power and authority to expend for and on behalf of such city or of such trustees such sums of money as may arise from the sources aforesaid or from any tax (other than state, county or school tax) levied upon any property within the city limits in constructing, building, paving, repairing, sprinkling and maintaining all streets, alleys and gutters within the city limits, in constructing, repairing and maintaining all sidewalks, bridges and viaducts within or the money of the city is to be expended therein.

WM. STOTT,
President of the Senate.

JOHN L. ROUTT,

The value of such a board in times past can easily be appreciated now. Members of the council change so often that it is difficult to have any uniformity in the management and development of our water and sewer systems. A similar law for Denver has worked very well and the board has been kept from partisan and factional influences. Every one of our tax payers should see that his name is down on the list, so that hereafter as may have a comprehensive policy in the management of our important public works. It will be noticed that the members of the board are to serve without pay, which insures us good honest men.

A DITTY.

NORTH CHEYENNE CANON, July 1, 1891.

To the Editor of the GAZETTE:

In your issue of the 26th inst. there appears a "Ditty" under the heading of "A Just Complaint," to which the author does not see fit to sign his (or her) name. Another communication appeared in the Republic of the 29th inst. relating to the same subject, and in self-defense we would request space in your columns to make a flat denial of the charges made.

The writer of that communication has either been shamefully misinformed, or his (possibly her) eyesight is not to be relied upon.

Truth is like a bullet—hard to dodge; but this correspondent has certainly succeeded admirably in eluding that virtue. The undersigned, as owner and manager, respectively, of the place in question, take the liberty to flatly contradict the statements made by this "Annoyed One." Your correspondent makes the assertion that "ladies recently driving in North canon "have been surprised and annoyed by the unusual sight of a small hollow surrounded by beer kegs and disreputable-looking loafers." We will gladly refer to any of the many visitors in the North canon if they ever saw any such articles about this place. There has never been a keg of beer sold upon the premises to our knowledge.

To be brief we will state that we are not on city property; that one of us owns the land on which this alleged unsightly "small house" is located, that there never has been, nor will there be, the slightest danger of offense to the most modest of ladies or the most fastidious gentlemen who choose to make excursions in the North canon. We do sell refreshments, including beer by the bottle; and we are of the opinion that it saves a good many the trouble of buying a bottle of beer in your own Colorado Springs and carrying it up with them.

Many of the first ladies of the city are pleased to stop at this place for a refreshing and temperate beverage, while their gentlemen companions are not at all sorry to find a bottle of beer just off the ice. No loafers are allowed, neither are there any "disreputable characters." There is not an unsightly object about the house in question. It is a neat cottage with veranda in front, and in plain view from the driveway is a bed of cultivated flowers, which have been admired and spoken of by hundreds of strangers-by.

In conclusion, we extend a cordial invitation to your correspondent to come up and see with his own eyes, and then perhaps we will not be maligned by the public.

Owner of Property.

THE DOT ON THE I.

Character Reading from the Implements we Mark Over a Small Letter

"Do you put the dot high above the letter?" Do you put it close to the letter? Do you send it flying beforehand? Is it fat, round, elongated? These are the questions which a master in the art of deciphering character from handwriting asks in each case your personality is the outward and visible sign of an inward reality. Look at the dots of your i's; try to make them different, smaller, larger, rounder, more oblong you cannot do it. The dot above the i only changes with your character.

If you often forget to dot your i's, you will also forget other things which seem unimportant to you, but which for the comfort of everyday life are necessary to the rest of us. If you have often to look in vain for the dot, you will also look often in vain for other things, because you have not put them in their proper places. For instance, you jot the fifth building item into your book before you were suddenly called away, and no better book-keeper's hand. You are sure to finish your work when is the fifth month? The young girl must have mislaid it while dusting. Sorry to see such a trouble!

In order to practice patience and self control you knit on with your four needles, "gently undoing," and patiently take back to your interesting novel. The book opens immediately, and there and there the glittering needle is chosen silent sermon to you. The knitting needle story is nothing new, it occurs in infinite variations, and happens specially to those who forget to dot their i's.

If the dot flies high above and far away from the letter to which it belongs your hopes, thoughts, wishes and aspirations are apt to fly about in far off regions, and instead of making practical use of the present day you dream of the ideals of the future. If this "high flown" dot is of an oblong shape, and if, in conjunction with it, the loops of your l, h, g, f, etc., are long, then goodby to practicality and calm, for you have very little self control.

If your husband's dots are heavy, shapeless and blotchy you will have a hard time if it where food is concerned. He will not be satisfied with a cold supper, an esthetic tea, or a meal of brief and vegetables. On the other hand, you have in his favorite dishes a means to pacify the grumbler, and to incline him to listen to your wish.

Your request for a new gown, for the theatre tickets, which was peremptorily refused before dinner, is listened to with much more interest after the man of the heavy dots has had a good meal. Never ask such a man to grant you a favor when he is waiting for his dinner. The larger the dots appear, the more critically a dish will be attacked and judged. Carlsbad, during the time when the patients go to drink the waters, is full of people who dot their i's heavily.

The dainty dot on the other hand, if it goes together with a hard writing that consists of thin strokes only, denotes a mind above "these things."

Such a "dainty dot" husband will be easily satisfied with his meals. He will hardly know what he is eating. You can get nothing "out of him" by giving him a dainty dish. He may even offend you by scant praise, when you happen to have prepared a dish with your own hands. It may even happen—if other graphological signs agree that such a "dainty dotter" forgets his meal times altogether, allows everthing to get cold, does not eat, nor praise, nor blame, and spoils the pleasures of the table for himself and others.—Edelweiss in Von Fels zum Meer

Reading by Moonlight.

Reading novels at midnight by the light of the moon is not known in the United States, but according to the English wife of Sig. Gregorio Revuelto of Guatemala it is no uncommon thing to see a senorita reclining in a hammock with a book in her hand on her father's veranda in the Costa Cuca district, Guatemala between 12 and 1 o'clock in the morning. Sig. Revuelto is a wealthy coffee planter, and is in this country, accompanied by his wife and sister in law on a pleasure trip. The travelers are registered at the Grand Pacific hotel.

"There are no moonlight nights in this country or in England like we have in Guatemala," said the Spanish planter's wife. "The moon at certain periods of the month is so bright that it is as light outdoors as during the day. English and American poets write about the sublime August moon, etc. They should see a moon in Guatemala during the time it is full. They would then have something to go into ecstasies about." Chicago Tribune.

Hard at It.

Hicks—Wonder what's the matter with Surleigh. He never goes anywhere, never sees anybody, and in fact is as much a hermit as though he lived a thousand miles from a human habitation.

Wicks—Nothing at all's the matter with him. He's engaged in solving the social problem and naturally he does not wish to have his mind distracted by association with his fellow men.—Boston Transcript.

UNITARIANISM.

The following excellent sermon was preached last Sunday evening. Pressure upon our columns has prevented its reproduction before this time, but in keeping it has lost none of its excellence:

"Be ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh you a reason of the hope that is in you with meekness and fear." 1 Peter iii 15.

"Why am I a Unitarian?" is the question I am now requested to answer. It is a question which I have many times before been asked in some form—which I have not unfrequently asked myself. What are my reasons for assuming this name? so satisfactory to some who accept it, and so unpleasant to multitudes who reject it. Are they sufficient not merely to justify me in so doing, but to compel me as an honest man to take this title, however much I may reject it, and whatever personal or social inconvenience it may involve? In the text directs, and in the spirit it enjoins, I am now to give a summary of the reasons for the hope that is in me. Not because others in answering this question have not spoken wisely and well, to whose words I might appropriately refer. But every great truth or principle presents different aspects to different and equally thoughtful minds. Possibly therefore, I may be able to suggest some phase or relation of the subject which have been less illustrated and emphasized by others, thus shedding a little light upon some points of it, and so justifying to these more adequately their trust in it, and inducing those to regard what seems to me so grandly true with less disfavor.

Why, then, am I a Unitarian? Not, let me first say, from love of singularity or isolation. If there be any pleasure in being compelled to deny what the great majority about me affirm, and to affirm what that majority deny, in feeling one's self cut off from the sympathy, if not the civilities, of nearly all Christendom, and in being stigmatized as a heretic, and perhaps an infidel, more or less dangerous to the community, it is a pleasure which I am—which I think most Unitarians are—quite unable to appreciate. Take the general condition of Unitarians as an organized body, many as have been its individual believers in every age, not more than three and a half centuries old in any part of the world, and in our own country less than a century old, composed of a comparatively small number of churches whose growth has not been rapid, phenomenal as has been the diffusion of its ideas and spirit during the last fifty years; as yet but grudgingly conceded the Christian name by nine-tenths of the religious world, and contrast it with that of many another denomination, having venerable historic associations, almost countless church edifices and congregations, of quite unquestioned recognition everywhere as a branch of the one true church, and of immense theological and social prestige. Is it an intrinsic pleasure to be ranked in so small and, as men commonly reckon, in consequential a body? Does the ordinary soldier, however honorable the position chosen a place in the advance guard of an invading army? Do persons come to us, or remain with us from ardent desire to be counted with the minority? Rather, how many are kept from us or leave us, because they cannot consent to stand with a so partatively small number? On the other hand to belong to a great company, to be surrounded by sympathetic hearts, holding one up, and cheering one on how delightful! Do we expect any who prize material success, or social position more than inward integrity, to forsake it? Do we not know that in the world at large, it still costs something to be a Unitarian? and that all our singularity and isolation could gladly be exchanged for conformity and co-operation if they could honestly be.

Nor am I a Unitarian for the sake of escaping mental restraint or lofty duty. An impression prevails, though less than formerly, that Unitarianism is a very easy religion, putting its disciples under slight obligations, demanding of them few and unimportant duties, provoking them with no considerable penalty for ill-doing and ultimately, almost without conditions opening the celestial gates to all. No mistake could well be greater. Instead of laying less restraint upon the lower nature, or making fewer demands upon the higher, Unitarian Christianity imposes the strongest restraint upon the one and makes the largest demands upon the other. The restraint on the one hand and demand on the other are grounded in two considerations. One is the inevitable moral law that every evil doer shall reap in a just retribution that here there is no shuffling or shirking, whether by one's own relief or another's suffering, but that the actual transgressor, man or angel, must bear the penalty. Let one realize this escape from the consequences of conduct not deterring to him and see its restraining effect be either doubtful or trifling? The other consideration, leading to a similar result, is the dignity of human nature. A creature adapted to evil, incapable of good, or of but a contemptible measure of it, may be expected to seek and find its element in sin. Can it be blamed for so doing following the law of its being? But a creature of noble powers and affinities that may aspire to lofty truth and purest goodness that is urged by the ever present spirit to aspire and struggle for them, how could such an one to recoil from what is low and base? How much dirt is sin in one well born, nurtured environed, than in one bad by birth, trained surrounded! in an angel than a fiend? How much greater the strong and intenser our indignation at it, of defacing a beautiful statue than an Apollo Belvidere, or a Greek Slave—than of marring an ugly block of marble out of which some dullard has tried to make a hand? Affirming the moral dignity and divine possibilities of every soul, saint nor sinner, every one to an exalted service and a glorious destiny, Unitarianism affirms the terrible-ness of sin, and inspires all whom it can reach to recoil from all evil. It is not here fore to Unitarianism that one will resort who would free himself from moral restraint or from the pressure of noble obligation. The first words he hears from that will be "Thou fool! to think of escaping the universal law—of escaping thyself! Thou worse than fool to degrade what is meant for God in like God into the minstrant of thine own lusts!"

But passing these points which it seemed worth while to mention, and which have detained me longer than I purposed, I remark that I am a Unitarian because I was born one. That is, I was a child of Unitarian parentage, and had the Unitarian liberal spirit instilled into me in earliest years. Even less however were those things taught me by precept than by example. For though losing my father when too young to have much appreciation of his character, it was my great good fortune that my mother was spared for years after I came to manhood. And if you will bear with a personal of course but not blindly so, in saying it, it was my unspeakable blessing to have a profoundly sincere unselfish, spiritually minded mother. Both before and since her departure I have known many excellent and some eminent women. I think I owe for the privilege of knowing them for the moral inspiration derived from them. And while I have known those that in some respects fortune having been more kindly to them—were actually her superiors, I can truly say that I have known no one who more completely trusted the Heavenly Goodness, who was more faithful to her sense of duty, whose daily life better illustrated the spirit of Jesus, and who derived a deeper satisfaction from [illegible] and experiences than she. To her spiritual things were the real, the material the shadows which they cast. Born of, and reared by such a mother, in whose character and conduct the principles and spirit of the liberal faith were so happily embodied, is it any marvel that I grew up, and to this day continue a Unitarian? Would not the marvel be that I could do otherwise?

Not that this is any argument for the truth of Unitarianism. There have been good and noble parents in all lands and religions. By the same reasoning, if such it can be called, [illegible] proved false? Ever thought Christian Mohammedan, Hindu, Buddhist. But while this worthy parentage, early teaching, youthful training constitute no proof of any doctrine or principle, they go far in explaining why multitudes are what they are, retaining the notions they were taught, and the associations into which they were introduced when mind and heart were most susceptible. For how few as people go, ever seriously ask themselves why they believe as they do? How they justify to the reason the creeds they assent to and the positions they stand in? Why they are Christians and not Mohammedans, Catholics and not Protestants, Evangelicals and not Liberals, or the reverse? On reason then—a very poor one. We there no other why I am a Unitarian by birth am I like Paul "I was born free." It is great a privilege such a birth some of us have and reared in boundless liberal and broad creeds which it has taken years to outgrow and whose dark shadows some moments cast you still, can appreciate far better than I.

I come to manhood, and looking about me at the opinions as I could the claims of different religious theories, I was drawn to an intelligible and closely to Unitarianism by the freedom in it by many of its advocates. As an movement Unitarianism began its career on this continent as a protest against rigid and illiberal creeds. The earlier orthodox party in the churches denied to the Christian name and fellowship to their more liberal members, compelled them to protest against such denial to protest against the creeds which it manifested to protest against all creeds as tests of communion because no creed can satisfactorily express the contents of religion and because all creeds are hindrances to the discovery of truth and the best interests of soul with God. No only has Unitarianism protested strongly against the old creeds and contributed to the present doubt and scepticism with them, but it has steadily refused to formulate a creed of its own. Not that it has not asserted certain great principles or cardinal ideas which all Unitarians hold just as astronomy or geology or biology in its certain facts and laws which all scientists accept but who ever heard of a formulated scientific creed of any sort? I venture to say moreover that there is quite as much harmony of thought, and much more harmony of spirit amongst Unitarians who hold a creed than amongst any other equal number of equally thoughtful persons associated for any purpose with a creed. Be it wisely or not, Unitarianism I repeat, has no creed to which all its members are subscribe or to politely, or otherwise, on the door. It does not force itself to be saying. Within this enclosure there is perfect liberty to roam, but whose steps beyond it covers all connection with me and puts himself in graves peril. It does not say to any: You must find certain things to be true but you are under most solemn obligation to find out what is true—in the Bible and out of it, about the Bible, nature, and God—just as far as you can, and to accept that truth with all your heart, and to follow wherever it may lead. It says to every one: You are never to fear a truth—that is the most deplorable infidelity. You are never to doubt its divine origin—that is to be damned. You are to be a free, thoughtful, reverent seeker because God made you a free soul because God asks of you no service which is not a free service because it is not what you say, or think that is regards one half so much as what you do and are. And for this spiritual freedom laying no burden on, but greatly stimulating my honest thought; not restricting by a hair's breadth, but wonderfully enlarging my purest sympathies; holding me call no man master, and accept no other authority than the voice of God speaking through my reason and conscience after long and I find equally recognized by no other faith, and which by some others is deplored as the most dangerous possession of a human soul for this spiritual freedom' I say, which Unitarianism is and offers to whomsoever will take it, am I restlessly drawn to this form of religion.

I am a Unitarian also, because Unitarianism appeals to the noblest human faculties. This, of course, it must do if, as first alleged, it be the religion of spiritual freedom. That it is actually the case is evident from the way in which it seeks to justify itself and from the inducements it offers for acceptance. It makes no dry, rudely gruff to fear telling men that, true or false, it is safer to embrace it as the first place belief were wholly a matter of choice, and not of evidence and argument, in the second place, the heavenly gates would swing wide for the entrance of a lush and dishonest profession of truth and close for ever against the brave and upright believer of error! Very seldom and very slightly in fact, does Unitarianism appeal to the sentiment of fear at all, and never as an intellectual motive. Fear of wrong-doing it does indeed, urge as entering the All-gracious spirit, as a violation of the moral order of the universe as the disturbance of one's own faculties, as in proportion to its own magnitude, what we symbolize by the term "hell." But fear of investigation fear of accepting the dictates of reason conscience, affection fear of any evil at the hands of God in time or eternity? Never. Instead, Unitarianism constantly addresses itself to the highest faculties. It says to every soul, you are a rational, moral, affectional being. These are your noblest attributes which are to live forever, which constitute your divineness. To these I appeal. If I cannot on a large survey of nature, providence, life justify myself to these faculties if I cannot show my reasoning to be so in strictly reasonable as to make it reasonable to question it so particularly just as to make it as long such impossible to long so [illegible] generally grounded make it so [illegible] to reject it and that it is only conviction is to refine and cannot be your self belong, then I ask its acceptance of you. I rest not the surface of your [illegible] but the reality of [illegible]. But I can then only say [illegible] self also—you the last [illegible] of my reading and experience and the deep [illegible] of [illegible] best instincts [illegible] if [illegible] art [illegible] is [illegible] if you for life to would make [illegible] a worthier soul than have [illegible] not only to do not [illegible] your [illegible] are [illegible] that [illegible] to [illegible] man [illegible] right you [illegible] it [illegible] to it. Certainly it is not at the bottom of our religious [illegible]. And this appeal I [illegible] one [illegible] reason for going to Unitarianism my heart also [illegible].

I am a Unitarian also, because I think Unitarianism in the teaching of the Bible. Not that I believe the Bible an infallible book. I believe no such thing. It would be difficult now to find a Bible scholar whose opinion is worth anything that does. Containing, most of the literature of the Jewish people for a period of from [illegible] years of our [illegible] by many different persons in varying different planes of life and endowed with different degrees of insight, how natural that it should include many an error of fact and fallibility of spirit and not unfrequently something worse. But while saying this I also affirm that the Bible grew up—for it was a growth and not a creation—amongst a people who had a marked religious character and if there has ever been a divine revelation we have reports of it there inspiration having touched high water mark in some souls there mentioned. Not infallible but authoritative is the Bible—as Plato or Hegel in philosophy as Newton or Darwin in science, as Raphael or Angelo in art—as the wisest and noblest soul you know is authority to people and [illegible] and as it increases the strength of such convictions, and confidence in one's instincts in secular affairs to find one's self in harmony with the masters therein so how much greater the assurance of the correctness of one's religious conceptions, and the rightness of one's aims to find that the great sayings of all the grander parts of the Bible sanction them. And that the Bible does specially sanction Unitarianism is evident, to my thinking, from two considerations.

First—Its general tone. To it there is one God, strictly one sharing his power and glory with none ruling everything there over all. Or, if in its earlier portions this conception be somewhat obscure and doubtful there is even then recognized but one God for Jews, while, slowly developing all the time was the idea of the One, all-loving ruler of the universe. There has never been an Israelite accordingly that was not a strict monotheist, or Unitarian; and the greatest hindrance now, and for almost hundred years, to the acceptance of Christianity by Hebrews, as everybody knows, is the Trinitarian dogma. Moreover no intelligent mind ignorant of the doctrine of christendom and reading the Bible for the first time could, I venture to think, from its general sweep and tenor whatever it might think of a few isolated texts, come to any other conclusion than that there is to be recognized one all wise God and moral ruler as all compassionating and who is carrying forward alike by means which human call natural and spiritual the grand purpose of educating and perfecting humanity. To the intelligent and wholly unbiased mind I say this it would seem is the general tone of the Bible.

Then again the Bible teaches Unitarianism still more satisfactorily to some minds by its explicit assertions. Examining it a little we find there is not a principle or doctrine of Unitarianism which cannot be clearly and unmistakably expressed in the precise words of the Bible. In fact a Bible statement of Unitarian belief is one of the easiest things in a language. Take for instance the conception of Deity and what more explicit than the apostolic words "To us there is but one God the Father—not Father Son and Spirit, some shadowy or half [illegible] which to us all things and we in him." He is light in him is no darkness at all. He is love and whoso dwelleth in love dwelleth in God. Take again the Unitarian conception of Jesus and how unmistakable such utterances as "My Father is greater than I" "I can of myself do nothing." "All power is given to Jesus of Nazareth a man approved of God" "there is one mediator between God and man—the man Christ Jesus." Is there anything like of a double nature of any mental reserve of right different from complete manhood and sonship? Though of course like all true manhood and sonship, they are divine. Take again the purpose of Jesus mission and how significant the declarations "God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in Him might have everlasting life." I am come that men might have life and shall they might have it more abundantly." What but there of anger to be appeased? of rough but love and life begetting love and life? Take, further the Unitarian conception of man and what can be more expressive thereof than such assertions as "God created man in His own image." Thou hast made him a little lower than than the angels!" "We are the offspring of God." "A man is the image and glory of God." If "noblesse oblige," what an inspiring conception of human nature this! Take, finally, the Unitarian conception of the result of God's moral government and what more explicit than Jesus saying "If I be lifted up from the earth I will draw all men unto me." or than Paul's assertion "When all things shall be subdued unto Him then shall the Son himself be subject unto Him that put all things under him, that God may be all in all." Any doubt here of the final triumph of truth and love? Any hint of one soul being finally left in darkness while all the rest are safe folded in light?

Try now to express the theological dogmas of Trinity, Original Sin, Vicarious Atonement, and the like, or the ecclesiastical dogmas of an Authoritative Church, Apostolical Succession, the necessity of Episcopal Ordination, or of any ordination but that of the Holy Spirit, in the language of the New Testament. Is this done in the great historic creeds Nicene, Athanasian, Westminster? When a few years since, a Canadian Presbyterian minister, on trial for heresy said "I accept the New Testament statements on these points" the general assembly as one voiced, "That will not do." When Dr. Phillips Brooks says, "I believe in the historic episcopate as a convenient and useful form of church polity, but not as of New Testament authority," he finds the approval of his election to the Episcopal bench withheld by many, and for a considerable period in grave doubt. Can all or any of these doctrines be satisfactorily stated in Bible language? You know well that no such phrases as the Triune God, God the Son, God the Holy Ghost, total depravity, vicarious atonement or authoritative church, apostolical succession and episcopal ordination are found in the New Testament. For these we have to resort to the language of theologians and ecclesiasts though, of course, they are supposed to be based on Bible implications. And to every believer in the New Testament this is no trifling consideration. To every such one it is no slight satisfaction to be able to express his convictions in the precise words of our great religious book. And this fact—that they can express exactly what they believe on all important points in the very language of the Bible—Unitarians are not disposed to overlook or underestimate.

Once more, I am a Unitarian because Unitarianism enables me to cherish the profoundest faith in spiritual realities. I suppose it a general impression that Unitarians believe vastly less than their evangelical neighbors, that, in fact, they believe scarcely anything; Unitarianism approaching about as near the vanishing point of faith as it can, and retain any pretension to religion. Nor do I say that Unitarians believe as many things as some. I am glad to say they do not. Neither do I say that Unitarians generally have an intenser confidence in moral and spiritual things than those of other faiths. But I do say that they ought to have, that they may live that if true to their position and principle, they will have a trust in God and man and the eternal [illegible] as has blessed no others. They have [illegible] their principles enable them to [illegible] Consider their conception of God as Infinite Father, bringing no hinder from the promptings of perfect love and never forgetting one moment forgetting the [illegible] perfect, ever sympathizing and tender [illegible] of [illegible] the [illegible] Son of God Christ who [illegible] forth like the divinity and [illegible] being no more the creator of [illegible] than the other and in whom is naught [illegible] or good for human nature and [illegible] and tell me what life this so touch [illegible] and inspires the [illegible] Consider the Unitarian conception of religion that it is not a foreign scion grafted into the human constitution nor the reversal of the [illegible] moral order of the [illegible] but the perfect and harmonious development of their faculties, reason conscience and affection strengthening them all, and is therefore not only the natural as it is the [illegible] and glory of our being and [illegible] any can resent or depreciate it. Consider the conception of heaven [illegible] perfection place of fair [illegible] as is so often said an [illegible] but as a condition of harmony with all truth and goodness with all holy souls, and with the great God who rules the strong will help the weak the motherly souls take the little children to the [illegible], the pitiful run on swift feet to succor the troubled, and each will contribute to the [illegible] of all—a condition open to all by our help attainable by all so that the lost living desire of the living, a [illegible] and tell me what [illegible] glorious prospect ever dawned on human vision. And this is the sublime faith accepted by Unitarians. Would they open their hearts to it, make it the shaping power of their thoughts, and the controlling spirit of their lives, what would it not enable them to do and be? To what heights would it not lift us what delights not introduce? Strength to hinder the wrong and help the right would nerve the heart. Serenity that no shock of fortune could disturb would abide within. Around to cheer and inspire would hover the pure and blessed. Visible the Father's face, and outstretched would be the Father's hand. To cherish so grand and exalting a faith which seers and prophets sought, but never found, is it not a sublime privilege?

The last but not the least reason which I shall now offer for being a Unitarian is that Unitarianism demands it. I believe the foundation of the moral [illegible] I do not say that Unitarians are more and better than their [illegible] but I say that if they are, I would suffer in comparison with them if moreover believe Bible teaching ought to be liberal minded, generous hearted, sweet tempered and [illegible] than any others not so rich belief [illegible] God's [illegible] to the [illegible] and the rushing symmetrical [illegible] and human unity. They ought to be [illegible] to them as all inspired not or motives revealed a higher ideal is made possible—[illegible] excellence. To them the education of life is no a spasmodic repentance, cleansing their sins and enrolling their names in the book of life. Their great business in the world is not the salvation of their souls. That spiritual self focus, logically resulting in indifference and hardness to souls unsaved. They are [illegible] of the gospel are correct, to grow and to help others to grow in knowledge and in [illegible] by are here to become and to make their purer, better more [illegible] forgetting that [illegible] are sent to be saved in the [illegible] from any [illegible] interest [illegible] heaven. They are [illegible] to hope any [illegible] to do [illegible] all the [illegible] all the [illegible] [illegible] exalted [illegible] character [illegible] dominated by their [illegible] and [illegible] nothing better than material [illegible] pleasure, now deem possible for human beings. At any rate, how good how divine by help ful to hold constantly before us so grand an ideal. And because Unitarianism presents such an ideal and makes such a demand I am not a [illegible] I am mostly ashamed to be no more worthy to be called a Unitarian. I count it no light privilege to accept such ideal and enjoy such fellowship.

Behold my answer to the question: Why am I a Unitarian. Of its adequacy judge ye.

...ts of Interest from the West's Favorite Resort.

Mr. F. D. Bindley, of Independence, has taken the position of chief clerk at the Sunny Side.

Fifty Chicagoans will arrive at the Iron to-day in charge of a Mr. Grafton, en route to Alaska.

Mr. J. B. Orman, the well known Pueblo millionaire, passed last night at the Springs, in company with his brother-in-law, George B. Stimpson.

The owners of the tract of land upon which is situated the Mellen property are having the street leading up from the avenue widened several feet.

Those who come in from a tramp and take a soda bath are loud in their praises of the mineral water as an invigorating drink. It is very restful to a tired person.

The yards of the Denver and Rio Grande depot at Manitou are beautifully ...ged. The floral decorations are the work of Wm. Clerk, the well known florist and landscape gardener.

The construction train bearing the people who left the first trains when it stopped two miles below the summit of the Peak Tuesday morning and continued on foot, arrived at the Iron Springs depot at 11 o'clock.

The Norris house is quite attractive since its addition which throws the old house quite in the shade. There are seven new rooms, large and well furnished, in the addition, and all are comfortably filled with guests.

A. C. Hunt, jr., of Laredo, Tex., and ex-Governor Hunt, who went up Pike's Peak Tuesday, were taken violently ill on the summit, but upon being carried to a lower altitude he revived yesterday was all right.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Nichols returned Friday evening from their eastern trip. This for Mr. Nichols to be a member of the excursion to Pike's Peak over the road Tuesday. Mr. Nichols visited Manhattan Beach and other eastern resorts. The weeks were spent in Chicago at the home of their son, who is superintendent of the telephone exchange of the World's Fair city.

The Mansions opened last evening for the season with Mr. A. W. Bailey, the well known proprietor, smiling about among his guests as usual. W. F. Maddox, late of the Washington apartment house, Kansas City, is chief clerk; J. B. Scott, of the Metropole, Denver, second clerk; H. L. Stevens, night clerk; Victor Lenz, chef; William Nahrstedt, pastry cook; Mrs. A. Cockrell, housekeeper; Richard Chambers, head waiter; waiters etc.

Mr. John Focke of Galveston, Tex., who has been passing the month of June with the Barker, in company with his daughter, left for home yesterday, much to the regret of the many warm friends he made during their stay. The young people will especially miss Miss Focke, who by reason of her graciousness and charming manners, was always favorite upon outings and the dozens of little impromptu affairs continually occurring at that hotel.

Mr. J. H. Graham has been presented with a beautiful diamond stud by Mrs. Graham as a token of her appreciation of his successful efforts to save her cottage on Ruxton avenue from the flames on the night of the Pollen fire. As the flames sprang from the Pollen house, Mr. Graham threw a blanket over his head and shoulders, and, with a garden hose kept the side of the house wet and stuck it out until the fire department arrived, notwithstanding his hands and face blistered with the heat.

The Police Court.

In the police court yesterday morning ... drunks, named Turner and Dowell, were given fines of $5 and costs, and a citizen was put on trial for throwing the irrigation water from the ditches upon his lawn, and fined $5 and costs. This is a matter that seriously interferes with the work of the superintendent of irrigation, and it is proposed to bring every body before the police court who hereafter interferes and undertakes to do his own irrigating with the ditch water.

In the afternoon Judge Kinsley's establishment was the scene of an animated trial, resulting from a row between William James and Alexander Kippie. James was the overseer of a gang of men engaged in cleaning ditches Tuesday on Nevada avenue. When Alexander Kippie, who was working out his poll tax, unaware of the fact that James was a no less distinguished person than his overseer, refused to obey his somewhat preemptory orders the anger of James rose, and he threatened to slap Kippie. He lost no time in carrying out his threat by striking him on the head with his shovel. Kippie, filling his shovel full of mud, retaliated, and James "collared Mr. Kippie by the chin whiskers." The result was that in a short time Kippie was astride of the overseer's neck, and James thus thwarted rose from the mud and pitched his antagonist, who still rode upon his shoulders, headlong into the ditch. James went for a policeman, and Kippie was summoned to appear in court, where it appeared that James was fully as much to blame for the disturbance and Kippie was discharged.

The School of Oratory.

At 8 o'clock this evening Prof. W. W. Franklin of the "Lone Star School of Oratory" of Waco, Tex., will deliver a fine address in the Baptist church, to set forth the advantages of elocution, and to explain his idea for starting a summer school of oratory. A course of four weeks is to be given as a trial, the session being held at the Baptist church.

Dr. Montague suggested in this paper yesterday that we encourage such institutions. Should the permanent location be secured for the summer sessions of the Lone Star school it would send out thousands of circulars throughout the south and east, and bring to the city a great many persons who would spend their money here. The way to secure the school is by encouraging the undertaking. The school asks no bonus but gave its bond to pay.

Hanlon-Volters.

The Hanlon-Volters, aerial actors, the Hanlon-Volters, are now making their first tour in America, in conjunction with a circus. The management of the Adam Forepaugh shows have secured the services of the incomparable gymnasts for a season of thirty weeks, at a salary of more than $25,000.

The Volters belong to a good family. They were educated in England, and formerly worked in a bank, and in the evenings after dinner they practiced gymnastics for their amusement, in a public gymnasium. A passenger who accidentally saw them perform, proposed making an engagement with them forthwith. They laboriously earned about $600 each in the bank, and the aforesaid passenger offered them $600 a month. They cleared their books and came to this country, and joined the Hanlon Brothers' combination, where they have won both fame and gain.

Hitherto the artists have refused all overture to travel with a circus, but the tempting offer of the Forepaugh show management proved irresistible, and the distinguished aerialists can now be seen at every exhibition of Forepaugh's circus, in their wonderful aerial flights, hair-hung dives, and thrilling and daring "leap for life" at an altitude of forty feet in mid air. Forepaugh's exhibition will give two entertainments here on August 19.

THE GAZETTE.

THURSDAY, JULY 2, 1891.

Mr. H. M. Blackmer has been appointed a notary public.

A very considerable party of Colorado Springs people have arranged to spend the 4th at Ute Park.

Where will you spend the Fourth? Go with the Trades Assembly to Green Mountain Falls or to Pueblo with the P. O. S. of A.

The Charles H. Adams hose will dedicate its new house by a dance on the 11th of July, given on the lawn of Mr. W. A. Corbett's house.

There will be an ice cream festival given for the benefit of the M. E. church South on the lawn adjoining the church this evening. All are cordially invited.

James N. Poole is associated with his father, A. N. Poole, at the old stand, 104 South Tejon street, in the real estate, live stock, employment and auction business.

Mr. Levi Sellers, brother of J. M. Sellers of the Alamo, has returned from the east, bringing his bride with him. Mr. Sellers will resume his position as clerk at the hotel.

Mr. Geo. C. Evans, formerly with John Lennox of this city, but now with the furniture house of J. G. Kilpatrick, of Denver, was in the city yesterday representing his firm.

Marriage licenses were issued yesterday to Robert S. McConnell of Tres Piedras, N. M., and Miss Anna F. Walker of Hunted; H. T. O'Byrne of Denver and Miss Dora M. Sweeney of Denver.

Mr. William Gavitt of Evansville, Ind., is a visitor in Manitou. Mr. Gavitt has just returned from Alaska, where he went as a special agent of the U. S. treasury. He is a brother of Mr. J. D. Gavitt of THE GAZETTE.

There was quite a large dancing party at the Cashio last night, over 100 persons being on the floor at one time. The electric railroad ran cars to the city at 1 o'clock, bringing back the guests. A fine supper was served at 11.30.

One of the prettiest places in this vicinity, but one that is seldom visited, is Blair Athol. A gentleman who has recently been there says that there is some difficulty in finding the road, and that a sign would be a great help where the road forks.

The committee appointed by the Trades Assembly to make the necessary arrangements for the grand excursion on July 4th, is sparing neither time nor expense to make it a grand success. Green Mountain Falls is an excellent place to spend the national holiday. Plenty of shade, fine boating, good music, dancing and other sports free.

At a conference of the Sabbath school workers and superintendents it was decided to hold the first meeting of the new Bible city, to the joint of the Young Men's Christian Association this evening at 8 o'clock. The meeting will be conducted by Rev. H. H. Bell, and all interested in the study of the Sabbath school lesson are cordially invited.

Dr. Alfred Meyer and his wife, Mrs. Annie Nathan Meyer, of New York City, are the guests of Mr. Louis R. Ehrich. Mrs. Meyer is widely known in connection with women's educational work, having been chiefly instrumental in the establishment of the annex for women in Columbia college. Her latest book, "Woman's Work in America," has lately been published.

A gentleman who had occasion to drive over the mesa road yesterday reports that the drive is unfit for travelers, especially if they are not very well. A dead cow lies in the road in a state of decomposition, and a strong wind drove the disgusting scent after him for at least a mile. The place is nearly impassable and it is certainly the place of some one to attend to the matter.

Policeman Wilson has been detailed to watch the parks at Cheyenne canon during the summer, and will be mounted. Officer Shelby takes Mr. Wilson's place on the night force and Tom Allen will leave the city hall. The ordinary Sodas, both black and white, who got drunk and create disturbances, had better watch out for Officer Allen.

A pretty sight is the new soda fountain at Dutton & Co's. It is now in place, and is a monster, said to be the largest in the United States. It is of black marble and ebonized wood, all metal parts being of plated silver. There are places for thirty-five syrups, six mineral waters and three sodas. The fountain was made by A. D. Puffer & Co. of Boston, and one of their men came to set it up.

About 1:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon Officer Allen made an arrest of two men, one of whom it is believed is guilty of the bold robbery near the Miller school house Tuesday night. They were arrested near the Rio Grande lateral schute as suspicious characters, and one of them had a considerable amount of money. Olin, who was held up, identifies one of them as the man who did the work, by his voice and clothes. They give the names of William F. Miller and Lee Childres.

Last night "Mr. Barnes of New York" was played at the opera house before a half-filled house. It was an audience well pleased with some excellent acting, and some tragic situations calculated to freeze any audience however great their yearning for powerful and realistic plays.

The limited space afforded by the stage of the present opera house did not permit of the display of all the company's scenic situations, but nevertheless the presentation of the play last night was very effective.

Every part was well played. James Neil in the part of Barnes was excellent, and his swaggering airy ways were in character, the man very much the Mr. Barnes pictured between the covers of Mr. Gunter's book. The part of Marina Paoli was played by Miss May Wheeler, a young woman with a powerful voice well adapted to the tragic part. Horace ... as Count Paoli Donaldi, and Sheridan ... as Count Marco Danello, were ably worthy of mention.

The duel scene, which closed with the duel on horseback, was most vividly life like, ... and the second act closed with Miss Marina and Mr. Barnes in love in love in an astonishingly short space of time, and gets acquainted by starving her into lunching with him.

The last act brought in the thwarted vengeance of Tomaso Monaldi. The refusal of Marina Paoli to kill her husband, the waiting for Antonetto to come through the passageway where he is to be stabbed, the blinded eyes and terrible appearance of Danello as he is discovered dead behind the curtain, were all fine features of the play as presented last night.

Everyone who delights in tragic acting will find it well worth their time to visit the opera house to-night, and take excitement from the atmosphere of crime and bloodshed that surrounds the young life of Marina Paoli, and the Corsican vendetta. It is the last performance this season.
